ARMY OF CROWN PRINCE IN PERIL

Germans Win Big Russian Battle

BERLIN, Sept. 15.—By Wireless via Sayville, N. Y.—General Hindenberg, the German commander in East Prussia, has telegraphed Emperor William that the Vilna (Russian) army, consisting of the Second, Third, Fourth and Twentieth Corps, two reserve divisions and five cavalry divisions, have been completely defeated. The Russian casualties are heavy. The number of prisoners is increasing and the destruction of the army continues. Enormous spoils of war have been captured.

The Grodno (Russian) army has been defeated at Lyck. There were 175,000 men in the Vilna army and 50,000 in the Grodno force.

The repulse of the German Crown Prince and his army in a desperate effort to smash their way through the French line between Verdun and Toul was announced in an official statement by the French War Office at Paris today.

An unconfirmed report from Dieppe, France, via London, says that General Von Kluck, commander of the retreating German right, has surrendered, after being encircled in northern France by the allies' left. Von Kluck is said to have lost from 14,000 to 25,000 men and many guns.

MAY BLOCK ESCAPE

The Crown Prince's line of retreat, to the west of the Argonne region, was threatened, so he tried, according to th edispatches, to force a way southward. Failing in this, the Crown Prince and his army are in danger of being surrounded and forced to surrender.

The first news of the set-back to the Kaiser's eldest son was this bulletin:

PARIS, Sept. 15.—The German Crown Prince's

TREASURER OF I. O. O. F. MISSING

Donald V. McPherson, treasurer of Manchester Unity Lodge, I. O. O. F., of Woburn, is missing from his home at No. 37 Houghton street, Woburn. Officials of the lodge declare McPherson's accounts are $300 short. He is said to have been gone a month.

A warrant was issued today charging McPherson with larceny. The warrant was sworn to by W. L. Clement, secretary of the lodge. Circulars asking for the arrest of McPherson were sent through New England today by Chief Charles F. Mc-Dermott of the Woburn police.

McPherson's wife says she doesn't know where he is. He was employed as a stationary engineer, but has not been at his place of employment for several weeks, according to the police.

The missing treasurer's alleged shortage was discovered some time ago. He was confronted by officials of the lodge, it is said, and given a chance to make restitution.

The police were not told of the alleged theft at the time, but when McPherson went away instead of trying to make good the alleged shortage, the case was reported to Chief McDermott and a warrant issued for his arrest. The fugitive is described as a man of forty-five, 5 feet 10 inches tall, with sandy complexion and a smooth face.

QUINCY MAN FINDS BABY ON DOORSTEP; NAMES IT "QUINCY"

The tiny baby girl found calmly sleeping on a doorstep in Quincy has been christened "Miss Quincy" by its rescuers. The baby was found on the doorstep of the home of George Nichols of No. 14 Francis court.

Mr. Nichols has been out to the theatre last evening. It was a fine, warm evening, and neighbors on their front doorsteps noticed two strange women passing along the street.

The strangers, the neighbors say, stopped and talked in front of Mr. Nichols's home and then one of them stepped inside his yard. It was too dark to see what happened.

But at any rate, when Mr. Nichols returned home some hours later, he was fumbling for his latchkey when he saw a bundle on the doorstep.

He dropped to his knees and investigated—carefully unrolled the shawl in which the bundle was wrapped. First came to light a bottle, half full of milk. Attached to the neck of the bottle was a nipple, extremely small, but quite tenacious. Mr. Nichols undertook to disengage the little fingers from the bottle, and events immediately eventuated. There came a tiny squall from the bundle and her ladyship protested that even though she hadn't eaten her supper yet, she was planning to.

Mr. Nichols called on a policeman for help in overpowering the visitor. The baby was turned over to the care of Mr. and Mrs. William Campbell, in charge of the City Home. This morning other inmates of the home examined the child with delight, and it was Mrs. Catherine Campbell, a woman of eighty-nine, who christened the child "Elizabeth Quincy."

The child, on the authority of Mrs. William Campbell, is six weeks old, has black hair and weighs seven pounds. Unless someone claims it, it will go to the Charlton Street Home.

Ex-Gov. Foss Owes Carpenter $1,903

Former Governor Foss is indebted to Henry E. Rankin of Boston, a carpenter and builder, $1,903.28, for services during 1905 and 1909, according to the report filed today at the Suffolk County courthouse by Joseph Wiggin, auditor, who heard the case. Rankin sued Foss for $10,000 claiming that the ex-Governor owed him for labor and interest. The amount the Rankin, according to Wiggin, is for exterminating brown tail and gipsy moths, better grass sod for rose culture in the Foss hothouses and repairs and traveling expenses.

LIMITED PLUNGES INTO RIVER

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Sept. 15.—Forty persons are reported drowned and five others were killed outright when Prisco train No. 3, west-bound from St. Louis for Texas points, dashed into the swollen waters of Goodwin Hollow, two miles west of Lebanon, Mo., early today. The trestle spanning the bridge was washed out by a cloudburst.

Twenty-six bodies were recovered up noon. The bodies were taken to Lebanon undertaking establishments. Many of them were but slightly clad and identification is proving difficult.

One man lost his entire family. When the crash came he was thrown clear of the wreckage and escaped unhurt. His wife and children were swept up in the chair car.

The train is known as the Southwest Limited. It left St. Louis at 4:32 p. m. and was running at a slight rate of speed when it struck the trestle. The locomotive plunged through the structure, dragging the forward cars of the train with it.

The firemen was drowning. The engineer almost miraculously floated to the surface of the water and reached shore.

A special train in charge of General Manager Lees of the Prisco left Springfield for the scene of the disaster soon after word of the wreck was received, but is moving slowly on account of washouts between Marshfield and Neburgh. A doctor who escaped from the wreck telephoned to Springfield that the loss of life at least was twenty.

MISS EDITH M. TAINTER, eighteen-year-old Medford girl who was shot by brother in mistake for burglar.

MEDFORD SHOOTING INQUIRY

Returning home through the back yard to frighten her father and brothers resulted seriously for Miss Edith M. Tainter, nineteen-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Tainter of No. 61 Sullivan street, South Medford. Miss Painter is in the Somerville Hospital with a bullet wound in her left leg just below the knee.

Hearing a noise in the backyard near the chicken coop, C. W. Tainter called to his son, Albert, twenty-one, who was upstairs. The young man grabbed his automatic revolver, threw open the window and fired a shot into the air. He failed to remove his finger from the trigger and two more shots followed. There was a scream.

Father and son rushed from the house and found Edith, wounded. In the darkness she had been mistaken for a prowler. She had been visiting a girl friend on an adjacent street and had returned through the backyard.

The girl was taken to the Somerville Hospital, where the bullet was extracted today. Miss Painter may be permanently lame.

Her brother, Albert, can at her bedside throughout the night. Today father and brother, each armed with a revolver, threw the weapons away.

RUSSIANS DEFEAT GERMANS IN EAST PRUSSIA--SERBS BEAT AUSTRIANS

LEGIONS OF CZAR ARE CLEARING BERLIN PATH

army has been repulsed in an attempt to break through between Verdun and Toul, it is officially reported.

The bulletin was followed ten minutes lated by a detailed dispatch, which also contained the orcial announcement. The dispatch, in full, said:

PARIS, Sept. 15.—The centre of the German army, composed of the forces under the Crown Prince, has taken the offensive against the French troops stretched along the Meuse between Verdun and Toul in an effort to break through, but has been repulsed.

This information was contained in an official statement issued at 11 o'clock. The evident intention of the Crown Prince is to pierce the French lines so that his army can form a junction with troops east of the Meuse.

The following is the official announcement:

"The Crown's Prince's army attempted to break through along the Meuse between Verdun and Toul. He has bombarded Troyon, which resisted valiantly. The German forces were repulsed."

It is believed in well-informed circles that the German army will retreat into the Grand Duchy of Luxembourg and into the Belgian province of Luxemboug and attempted to rally their position.

The unconfirmed report of the surrender of General Von Kluck arrived in the following brief dispatch:

LONDON, Sept. 15.—A Central News dispatch from Dieppe, France, says:

Reports have reached here that the allies' extreme left, after making an encircling movement by way of Roye and Ham, joined forces with troops from behind Boulogne and compelled General Von Kluck to surrender.

According to one report General Von Kluck lost 14,000 men; according to another, 25,000 men. Both say he lost many guns and much war material.

The AMERICAN'S London correspondent wires:

LONDON, Sept. 15.—The stand of the government, as regards reports that Germany might listen to mediation proposals, is reflected in the following editorial appearing in the Times today:

"The allies will go to Berlin to settle accounts, not to lay waste the Fatherland. They will have this to say to the German people: 'This worship of war must cease and the sword you have forged must be broken.'"

Less than ten minutes before this London dispatch arrived a dispatch from Petrograd was quoting a Russian official cry of "On to Berlin." It said:

PETROGRAD, Sept. 15.—Rumors that the Russians seek to capture Vienna and Budapest brought this statement today from War Minister Sukhomlinoff:

"Our objective is Berlin. We have no intention of taking either Vienna or Budapest. It was our plan to remove the Austrians as a source of danger. That has been accomplished and the southern army merely used to hold the Austro-Hungarians in check. Bukavina is completely in our hands. Galicia will also be, as soon as the crippled Austrian army is routed or captured and Cracow is invested."

PETROGRAD, Sept. 15.—Sweeping across the Vistula river and striking at the rear of the Austrian army struggling to save itself from annihilation, the Russian troops have destroyed a large part of the commissary supplies of the enemy, according to official announcement today. By a sudden stroke, directed from Russian Poland, the Russians have compelled the Austrians, who had fortified positions on the San river, to fall back to escape being outflanked. The Russians are now crossing the San in force.

AUSTRIANS BADLY BEATEN.

Following this statement of Russian victory in Galicia came another official statement that the Russian trap prepared for General von Hindenberg of the German army before Koenigsberg had been successful. Berlin claimed yesterday that Von Hindenberg had driven the Russians back. The Russian War Office said that Rennenkampf, the Russian general, was merely drawing the Germans into unfavorable position. What finally happened, according to the Petrograd War Office, is this:

PETROGRAD, Sept. 15.—An official statement today says:

"Rennenkampf had defeated the Germans in a ten-hour battle in East Prussia and driven them back toward Koenigsberg with heavy losses.

"After a steady withdrawal for several days before superior forces of the Germans, the Russians received reinforcements and drove the enemy back. Reforming, they again took the offensive and attacked our positions at Goldap. They stormed our positions with bayonet charges in the face of a withering fire, but were repeatedly repulsed.

"Finally, after a bloody conflict that lasted ten hours the enemy retreated. Our troops [illegible] hot pursuit. The victory was due to the clever st[illegible] of General Rennenkampf, who drew the enemy's troops out until they were too weak to overcome us."

Night dispatches reported that the Russians had also defeated the Austrians at Mlawa, a village of Russian Poland, about fifty miles east of Thorn (West Prussia).

Disaster continues to overtake the Austrian arms on the southern border. The Servians report another victory:

NISH, Sept. 16.—An attempt of an Austrian army of 90,000 men to invade Servia, near the junction of the Drina and Save rivers, has resulted in disaster for the Austrians, who lost 10,000 men. The official announcement here says this is one of the most serious defeats the Austrians have suffered at the hands of Servia.

Continued reports came in today, via Copenhagen and Geneva, of gloom in Berlin over German losses. The London Star points the following:

COPENHAGEN, Sept. 15.—Attempts of German officials to hide the truth about the war have failed. The real facts are penetrating Berlin. Absence of detailed news is creating a panic.

GENEVA, Sept. 15.—After several days' silence, which has aroused anger in Berlin, no mention is yet made of the battle of the Marne. Serious demonstrations continue in Germany. The people insist on knowing the truth from the Kaiser himself, who is silent.

An official report that Mauscape has been relieved lacks confirmation.

The night dispatch from Bucharest, reporting changes in the Rumanian cabinet, was followed today by this development:

LONDON.—A Central News dispatch from Rome says that the Rumanian cabinet has resigned.

This is regarded as further indication of a possible Rumanian alliance with Russia. King Charles of Rumania is a Hohenzollern, but his people are said to be pro-Russian.

Battle Issue Undecided Says Berlin War Report

BERLIN, via Amsterdam, Sept. 15.—The following official statement was issued at the War Office today:

German coat of arms.

(OFFICIAL.)

In the western theatre of war the right wing of our army has been engaged in heavy but undecisive battles. The French who endeavored to break through our lines were defeated. At other points where there has been fighting no decisive results have been reached.

REPORT OF GERMAN ATROCITIES CONFIRMED BY BRITISH BUREAU

By HERBERT TEMPLE.

LONDON, Sept. 15.—The government press bureau today issued a long report from the Belgian commission of inquiry, confirming charges that the Germans committed atrocities. The report covers the time from the entry of Germans into Louvain on August 19 up to August 30.

Instances of pillage, incendiarism and rape are cited in the report. The commission states that it has secured expanding bullets (dumdum) used by the Germans at Werchten, and declares that people were burned alive and shot unjustly.

The report gives evidence of an eye witness who left Louvain on August 27. This report declares that the atrocities started near the American college and that the town was destroyed with the exception of the town hotel (Hotel de Ville) and the railroad station. He said Louvain was still burning when he left. "The town looked like an ancient ruined city," the report quotes this witness as saying.

GERMANS RALLY FOR BATTLE ON THE AISNE

By FRANKLIN P. MERRICK,
American Staff Correspondent.

PARIS, Sept. 15.—Supported by reinforcements from Belgium the right wing of the retiring German army under General Von Kluck has rallied and is giving battle to the allies along a line north of the river Aisne.

Further to the east, north of Rheims, the Germans are also resisting, but the retreat west of the Argonne forest is reported to be continuing.

This was the situation along the front today, so far as it could be gathered from advices from the scene of action and government reports. Statements issued by the French War office during the past twenty-four hours are confusing. An announcement made in this city shortly before midnight said:

The enemy appears to be making a stand on a prepared front along the River Aisne, in the centre, similarly, it would seem as if the enemy intends to remain on the heights to the northwest and north of Rheims.

DEFENSES ABANDONED.

Another official statement, issued some hours earlier in Bordeaux, said:

On our left the enemy had prepared to the north of the Aisne, between Compiegne and Soissons, a line of defense which he has been forced to abandon. In the centre, likewise, the Germans had occupied a defensive position behind Rheims, which they were unable to hold.

The significance of this discrepancy is that the statement announcing a German stand was the later one issued.

An unofficial report to the effect that Maubeuge had been relieved and 12,000 Germans had been taken prisoner there was in circulation here, but lacked confirmation. Such a development at Maubeuge would enable the Germans to retire through the narrow gap flanked by Maubeuge and Verdun, if hard pressed in their retreat.

Note: It had been officially announced by the German government in Berlin last week that Maubeuge had been captured from the French and that 10,000 prisoners and a large number of guns had fallen into the hands of the Germans.)

MAIN ARMY INTACT.

While reports are contradictory, beyond doubt, it is free to say that the allies have achieved a decisive and overwhelming victory for the allies. By masterly strategy the Germans have been able to keep the main lines of their battle army intact, although thousands of soldiers, overcome by exhaustion or unable to find their way, have fallen into the hands of the French and British armies, as well as a large amount of munitions, supplies and armaments.

The German army is far from safety, however, and, according to official admissions in Paris, the only section of the German ground army that now seems to be in danger of being cut off from the other columns is that of the German Crown Prince, which is in the region of the forest of Argonne. Because of the broken nature of the country in that district and the stubborn resistance of the Crown Prince's soldiers, this section was left farther in front than the balance of the German line.

The feeling of confidence Von Kluck is also believed to have received a supply of fresh ammunition for his small arms and artillery.

French army, which is officially known as the Fifth Army, has now advanced to a point slightly north east of Amiens, the main body resting around that city. It is part of General Joffre's strategy to keep this army moving eastward and northward as rapidly as possible to keep turning at the northern extremity of the German line.

FALL BACK TO TRENCHES.

From the information received by the French general staff it is evident that the Germans have either fallen back into trenches which had been used previously, north of the Aisne, or had been able to prepare defensive works from which to force the allies.

The bravery and the stoicism of the wounded amazed me. I saw hundreds of them, some almost shot to pieces, crawl from the ground into an ambulance. Every move meant terrible pain to them. Yet none whined. None complained. The faces of some were white and drawn with pain, but they never uttered a word of protest. Some even smiled through their suffering, passed some little joke, and gracefully thanked the nurses and the doctors for the aid that had been given to them.

British troops are reported to have crossed the Aisne near the junction of that river and the Oise, where their passage was first opposed by German artillery. This gives the allies a big advantage, for it enables unnecessary for at least a part of their troops to cross the stream farther to the east, where they would have to face the German fire.

The German lines now extend in a southeastern direction, beginning at a point northeast of Amiens and stretching parallel to the Aisne, some twenty-five miles north of Rheims. German [illegible] missed in the forest of Ar[illegible] another section is concentrated east and southeast of Verdun.

According to the French War office statement, issued last night, the French have succeeded in relieving the fortress of Troyon, in the Woevre district, about twenty miles southeast of Verdun.

TO ACT AS A PIVOT.

Although the German Crown Prince has been compelled to move his quarters eastward fifteen miles from St. Menehould to Montfaucon, this section of the German army will undoubtedly make terrific efforts to hold its position, as that it can act as a pivot from back of the German lines.

The rapid pursuit of the Germans has forced this effect upon the armies of the allied army. The advance guard are ahead of their base and the rapidity of their movements has extended their lines. It is believed that the French and British soldiers who have been rushing forward in pursuit of the Germans will need time to recover their breath and replenish their ammunition before they can strike a decisive blow.

VICE-PRESIDENT MARSHALL URGES PEACE SUPPORT

CHICAGO, Sept. 14.—Vice-President Marshall, who is here attending the annual meeting of the Supreme Council, Thirty-third Degree Masons, wrote and signed the following statement today:

"The international peace movement, in which Mr. Hearst's newspapers are arousing such world-wide interest, should have the support of all lovers of humanity and leaders of thought and action.

"The sentiment of Americans is overwhelmingly in favor of the use of all amicable measures to bring to a speedy end the war now being waged by nine nations, using the utmost care to maintain strict neutrality and not to offend any of the warring powers.

"The plan which you have suggested for the sending to Europe of a peace commission composed of such representative Americans as ex-Presidents Roosevelt and Taft and Secretary of State Bryan, is certainly worthy of serious discussion, and I hope the opportune time will come when such overtures will be welcomed as a manifestation upon the part of our government of its genuine friendship for all peoples and its sincere desire to promote world peace.

Vice-President Marshall

PEACE MOVEMENT SWEEPS ENTIRE U. S.

The tremendous peace movement inaugurated in Boston by the peace meeting on the Common last Sunday, under the auspices of the Boston AMERICAN, and inaugurated elsewhere throughout the country by similar meetings and demonstrations, arranged by Hearst newspapers, is today gathering momentum for an irresistible sweep toward the goal of world peace.

The invitation of the Hearst newspapers to the people of the United States to form a great International Peace Committee has elicited thousands of replies. The suggestion of Mr. Hearst that a peace comission, composed of such men as former Presidents Taft and Roosevelt and Secretary of State Bryan be sent to Europe to use use their influence, and to embody the United State's hope for peace, has been endorsed by leaders throughout the country.

The great men of the nation are ranking themselves unanimously in the forces of peace. Vice-President Marshall in Chicago has endorsed the peace movement in sweeping terms.

Cardinal O'Connell and other distinguished churchmen have lent it their support. Educators, labor leaders, the heads of the fraternal orders and men prominent in civic life unite in the great demand—"Let the war cease!"

ECHOED OVER CONTINENT.

The meeting on Boston Common, echoed by similar meetings clear across the Continent to Los Angeles, was but the beginning. Other meetings, large and small, are being held and will be held. In none of them is there any attempt to blame this nation or that nation for the war. In all of them is sounded the universal note—"Peace, peace and eternal."

Former Governor John D. Long today indorsed the movement in Boston. So also did the Rev. C. F. Dole of the Twentieth Century Club, Samuel J. Elder, Mayor Curley, Governor Walsh—many others—indorsed the movement inaugurated by the meeting on the Common. Into the offices of the AMERICAN are pouring letters from hundreds throughout New England who desire to enroll in the World Peace Committee.

MR. DOLE'S STATEMENT.

I am thoroughly in favor of a peace commission, outlined by Vice-President Marshall, but I should want care in the selection of the men who are to serve upon it. If Mr. Hearst or anyone else can help to stop war and get rid of dreadnaughts and all the armaments of war, we will follow him and others who have the same aspirations. In a peace commission, however, I should want the work of making peace with the nations very thorough. There is no use of appeasing their desire for war for a short time and then have it break out again.

Former Governor Long said:

A peace commission, made up of representative men, as emphasized by Vice-President Marshall, has my heartiest approval. Measures which bring peace should be willingly indorsed. Such measures want to be pressed. They should be urged until they bring forth the fruit of the great international peace commission.

President John G. Hibben of Princeton University telegraphed his indorsement of the movement, and pledged himself to do all in his power to crystallize the sentiment of the country for peace.

William R. Day, Secretary of State in the McKinley Cabinet, and chairman of the commission which arranged the treaty of peace with Spain, telegraphed yesterday from Canton, Ohio:

I am in hearty sympathy with the movement for promoting peace in Europe.

Lyman J. Gage, Secretary of the Treasury in the McKinley and Roosevelt Cabinets, and Jacob M. Dickinson, once Secretary of War in President Taft's Cabinet and formerly president of the American Bar Association, also telegraphed hearty indorsements.

United States Senator Hoke Smith, former Governor of Georgia, and once Secretary of the Interior, telegraphed a stirring message.

"The indorsement of the Hearst movement, even by citizens of the embattled European nations now in this country, is one of the most extraordinary and significant things revealed by the work thus far and seems to indicate clearly that there is a very real basis for peace in the minds of the European millions.

Praises This Remedy for Lung Trouble

Many people are led to believe that Lung Trouble is a disease which cannot be cured. This is wrong as many have fully restored their health. A change of climate has helped some, but many have been restored to health by treating the disease at home, eating well cooked, nourishing food, being temperate in their habits and using the wonderful qualities of Kilmer's Absorbine, a medicine for Throat and Lung Trouble. Investigate this case.

Bowling Green, Ky., R. No. 4.

"Gentlemen:—The spring of 1908 I had a severe attack of pleurisy. I tried all the medicine that my doctors recommended to me but got no relief. So after I was sick eight weeks and would cough and vomit until I could not retain food or anything. But, at last, Jones (seeing of Glasgow, Tennessee, stated that I ought to take Absorbine as he knew it was quite a good medicine for men's or ladies' troubles, and after I had taken several bottles I felt as well as ever in my life. I firmly believe that Kilmer's Absorbine saved my life. I am a living testimonial before the world. Yours truly,

A. C. BITTERTOFFER.

Absorbine is a wonderful remedy for bronchial coughs and severe colds and long attacks of influenza. For all throat troubles it can be counted on. Safe, dependable, always acts promptly. Correct Way to Treat Skin Diseases

Both air and water seem to have a bad effect upon skin diseases like Eczema, of which there are many forms. Keeping out the water and air is the first thing to do. By using Cadum, the well-known remedy for skin diseases, air and water are excluded, because Cadum contains petrolatum and white wax, and these form a tight covering over the sore places upon the skin. Cadum also contains oil of cade, which has been successfully used many years by the medical profession in the treatment of Eczema and other skin trouble. If your baby is inflamed, irritated or sore, get a 10c box of Cadum of your druggist and try it. The 25c size box contains nearly four times as much as the 10c size and is cheaper to buy.

'CORNERED GERMANS FLED LIKE ANIMALS'

By LAWRENCE ELSTON.

LONDON, Sept. 15.—"The Germans fled like animals who know they had been cornered," is the graphic description of the German retreat given by an English correspondent, telegraphing from Metz, southeast of Paris. His version follows:

"I have just come from Ostend, where the hospitals are full of sick. Young men and men in the prime of life, who have laid their youth and strength upon the bloody high altar of freedom. I have seen sights too horrible to speak of—sights which cannot be described by any man in the gentlest terms. I have awaked twice to hide it from another.

"I have seen men, German as the most exalted type by educated people, under guns of a commander so great that no words exist to recompense it.

AN INVISIBLE TERROR.

"I have travelled mostly over territory and witnessed hundreds of horrible instances, farm cattle with a couple of coats tethered to the wheels, a team of oxen browsing nearby, and the peasant and his wife and children gathered about a little fire. I have seen women, famished and terrified, fleeing across the long stretches of no country, with their children. With every mile there was an invisible terror for them.

"I have just spoken with a soldier who has returned wounded from the pursuit that will go down in history, along with the terrible retreat from Moscow as one of the crowning catastrophes of the world. This soldier, speaking of the German retreat, said to me:

"They fled like animals who knew they had been cornered. They refused to treat, at times, seemed insane to me. As we followed them we found the roadways for mile after mile littered with guns, horses and cartridge belts which the Germans had dropped, so as to lighten the load they had to carry. We also found Maxims and heavy cannon.

"And along these roads were huge piles of dead horses, stacks of dead men. In some of the fortified villages the Germans were slow leaving that when the dead and wounded fell they formed little piles around the living, and when others of the living were shot these piles grew still larger. The dead supported them and the last to be shot remained standing on their feet.

"The sights that met our eyes were horrible and incredible. I refuse to spend the power in words to tell.

CARRIONS AT WORK.

"Tremendous efforts have been made to bury the dead, but the task is a colossal one. One cannot bury whole armies in a day. To add to their horrors of the situation are the carrions, who hover over the fields, waiting a chance to swoop down upon their victims. Even the tenderest one was an army of living, breathing men in the prime and vigor of life.

"I have heard, too, that shells have been operating among the dead, trying to the fields with fire. Even in the end taking from the clothes of the dead all the valuables that can be found and thereby to the villages the dead and wounded make an endless procession. Doctors and nurses are constantly rescuing the wounded from among the piles of dead, and as soon as they are hard to bring back the spirit of those whom they rescued. They are not allowed to leave the wounded Germans as they do for those of France and England.

"Whenever a wounded soldier is found he is at once given first aid to the injured. Ambulances are hurried from over 100 different points, then carry the wounded back to their temporary hospitals, where big staffs of nurses and doctors give them further aid.

PICTURES IN OIL SKINS.

"Many pathetic scenes were enacted on the fields where the wounded were found. Often messages and records came upon men who were already dying. Pulling themselves back from semi-consciousness, they would reach into their pockets, pulled out oil-skin covered packets and hand them over to the nurses or doctors. The packages invariably contained the pictures of the wife and the children of the dying soldier.

"Please send it home to my folks," they would plead. "Tell them I have done my duty and died bravely."

"I have seen trainloads of French and English troops hurrying to the battle fields. The sight can never be forgotten. Huge bouquets were suspended from the sides of the engines and cars. Whole flower gardens have been used in decorating the cars and the engine, and, as the train moved away from the station the populace in a tremendous cheer.

"I had an experience one evening in Havre that I shall cherish as long as I live. It was sunset. The United States cruiser Tennessee stood out to the harbor awaiting her last consignment of refugees. All was quiet and peaceful. Suddenly the lock gates swung apart, and, amid a great booming of artillery, a transport, loaded with English troops swung down with the tide.

DIPS STARS AND STRIPES.

"Slowly the transport came along until she was abreast of the Tennessee. Then the American war vessel dipped her flag in salute to the English troops. Then came the greeting that seemed to bespeak friendly sympathy. As the flag dipped there was a mighty cheer from the warriors that lined the decks, of the transport, that gradually died away in the distance. Then the Tennessee's band struck up the 'Marseillaise' hymn and pelted harder and harder as the English troops faded from sight.

"Britain first of Heaven's commandment."

Arose from out the azure main.
This was the charter of the land,
And guardian angels sang this strain:

"And thus the amazing thing happened, for, as the English began the chorus, the cultured, cheering, the spirit of united brotherliness, joined the French soldiers and sailors in singing their own version of the hymn, and from the water a joint English-American chorus:

"Rule Britannia, rule the waves,
Britons never will be slaves."

The LAST SHOT: By FREDERICK PALMER

READ THIS SYNOPSIS FIRST.

Marta Gallaud and her mother live on the frontier between the counties of the Browns, their own, and the counties of the Grays. By their house passes a road through the pass in the range. To hold the pass is to hold the range.

There house was built by the first Gallaud on the land that his king had given him for one of the most brilliant feats of arms in the history of the race. Beyond the house rises the ruins of a castle centuries old, its tower still intact.

Among the friends of the Gallauds, two are prominent. One is Sandros, the young chief of intelligence on the Brown general staff, who first met Marta ten years before in the result of an aeroplane accident. The other is Westerling, vice-chief of staff of the Grays and actual head in all but name, whose hook nose Marta had predicted ten years before.

Marta, who has travelled round the world in visiting the Gray capital, had met Westerling calls upon her. She tells him that for nations to fight is as foolish as for neighbors to quarrel, and declares herself at war with all fighters.

She tells him that she is teaching a class of children at La Tir, near her home, to abhor war, and is making them take an oath that when they grow up they will never submit to a frontier to kill their fellow men. She urges him to prevent a war between his country and her's, for she declares, "you all love me."

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

I was very attentive riding my hobby against points, wasn't I?" she exclaimed in a flutter of distraction that made it easy for him to discern that she was not. I stated a feeling. I made a guess, a threat about your winning—and all in the air. That's a woman's privilege, one men grant, isn't it?"

"We enjoy doing so," he replied, all urbanity.

"Thank you," she said simply. "I must be at home in time for the children's lesson in Sunday. My sleeper is engaged. And I am not to miss the train I must go immediately."

HAD HAD GOOD TIME.

With an undetectable shock of regret he realized that the interview was over. Really, he had had a very good time; not only that, but—

"Will it be two years before we meet again?" he asked.

"Perhaps, unless you change the plans about there crossing the frontier to take tea," she replied.

"Even if I did, the vice-chief of staff might hardly go."

"Then perhaps you must wait," she started him, "until the teachers of peace have done away with all frontiers."

"Or, if there were war, I should come," he answered in kind. He half turned as if to end the short colloquy argument and she would miss her train. But she made no reply. "And you, my dear Gray capital again. You are not through travelling?" he added.

This aroused her afresh; the flame was back in her eyes.

"Yes. I have all the memories of my journeys to enjoy, all their lessons to digest," she said. "There is your three acres. I love to feel the warm, rich earth of our own garden as we tramp. Heroism, I shall see a day at home, and if my children desire, and we find an opportunity, we shall go on tramping with the same zest, earnest grip of her greeting. "Au revoir, son will find that too is as usual at four-thirty."

He had found the women of his long school world—the upright, self-reliant, free, but not to be realized—much alike, striking certain keys, certain chords responsive. He caught the depths of their minds, he thought, in a single evening. That he pursued them unless it was in the interest of pleasure or of his career to linger was something had left his curiosity baffled. He understood how Marta's self-contained action, which expressed itself in a feminine way for a feminine cause. The cure for such ills is one dear to his masculine perception. What if all the power she had shown in her appeal for peace could be made to serve another ambition? He knew that he was a great man. More than once he had wondered what would happen if he were to meet a great woman. And he should not see Marta Gallaud again unless war came.

CHAPTER IV.

Times Have Changed.

Fifty-53d of the Browns had started for La Tir on the next day that the 128th of the Grays had started for South La Tir. While the 128th was going to new scenes, the 53d was returning to familiar grounds. It had detrained in the capital of the province from which its ranks had been recruited. After a week's leave, there was a welcome from the citizens, there was a welcome from the citizens, there was a welcome from the citizens

RENTAL FREE IN NEW PUBLIC CITY MARKET

The free public market is situated at the corner of Castle street and Shawmut avenue, South End.

The site embraces about 15,960 square feet of unoccupied land, which is at present surrounded by bill boards. The land lies near the discontinued Elevated entrance to the old Tremont street subway.

SITES FOR EACH.

The market site is thus two blocks west of Washington street and Lowe's South End Theatre. It is five blocks east of Castle square and Tremont street. It is four blocks south of Beaumont street subway entrance. It is ten blocks south of Boylston street. It is near the New Haven and Boston & Albany tracks.

The market site is in the shadow of the Holy Trinity (German Catholic) Church, and it is diagonally across the street from the Morgan Memorial. It is therefore easily accessible to many.

Under Mayor Curley's plan, as at Boylston street, all market producers who care to do so may drive onto this free public market and sell their product direct to whomsoever comes to buy.

Pushcart peddlers with produce and foodstuffs of all kinds will have the same privilege, with rent free sites set apart each seller.

There will be no middlemen, no rent to pay, no chance for a monopoly to get the grip. Food prices are expected to drop below the price elsewhere.

MAY OPEN OTHERS.

The Mayor plans, if this market is a success, to open others in other sections of the city. If the city refuses to appropriate the money necessary the Mayor may appeal directly to the people.

Mayor Curley, when there seemed some doubt of the city's right to appropriate money for this purpose, was prepared to pay the expenses himself. The site is given free through an offer of George E. Smith, a former president of the Chamber of Commerce, but some expense is necessary to make it ready for use.

The city law department and the city could appropriate the money, and the Mayor at once sent a special message to the City Council asking that $500 be transferred from the reserve fund to be used for the purpose.

As the council had adjourned when his message was received, Mayor Curley plans to call it in special session next Monday to pass the city market appropriation.

Boston Theatre to Have Grand Opera

The season of grand opera at the Boston Theatre is now assured. Alessandro Bevani, who will be operatic director, is assembling his principals in New York, while the chorus, ballet and orchestra, all veterans of the Boston Opera company, will begin rehearsals at the Boston Theatre in a few days.

Leary, who returned from New York today, declared that his success in securing stars is even greater than he anticipated. He said:

"One of the most pleasing features will be our sopranos and tenors, whose success I believe will be sensational. We have secured the services of Theodore H. Bauer, late director of the Montreal Opera company, as consulting director in New York. I have arranged for a big surprise in connection with the opera company, but cannot announce it yet."

Auburndale Girl to Wed a Californian

Miss Alma Louise Tower, daughter of Mrs. Mossa S. Tower of No. 18 Myrtle avenue, Auburndale, will be married to Donald Forsha Irvin, a mining engineer of Pasadena, Cal., tomorrow evening, at the home of Mrs. George B. Eager, No. 49 Sumner avenue. The best man will be C. L. Tower, and his wife will act as maid of honor. The officiating clergymen will be the Rev. Dr. W. S. Gordon.

The couple will sail on the Saxonia on Thursday for a honeymoon trip to Costa Rica.

State-Wide No-License Fight.

The Massachusetts Anti-Saloon League leaders are beginning to hope Massachusetts may be swept into the prohibition column this Fall and a State-wide campaign will be begun Monday. Ernest H. Cherrington will come from Washington to speak.

Hub Best Able to Aid Foreign Trade, Fitzgerald States

Boston is better able to take care of foreign trade than any other city. We must get a large part of our product out on the water, or starve and the factories go to ruin.

The opportunity is here with the ocean at our door. The West is manufacturing practically all export automobiles, yet New England has facilities and better mechanics. Imagine, not a single export commission house in Boston, while New York is full of them.—Ex-Mayor Fitzgerald in a speech at Mansfield.

Rottenberg Estate Worth $646,152.84

Julius Rottenberg, the Boston steamship agent who died recently, left an estate which has been appraised at $646,152.84. Of this amount $456,696.16 is in personal property.

MOVE TO NAME FOSS OF MALDEN FOR MAYORALTY

That Paul M. Foss, president of the Malden Common Council, will be the probable selection at the liquor censors' mass meeting tomorrow evening for Mayor of Malden became known today. Members of the committee of seven, a citizens' committee appointed to look after a city government slate for the next municipal election, may announce the selection of Foss at the meeting and ask the meeting to indorse him. It is understood friends of Mayor Charles Pelghinger will oppose the indorsement.

Foss has been president of the Common Council for two years. He recently declined a tender of the Republican Representative nomination.

Daniels' Water Wagon Order Lands U. S. Tar in Jail

"Old Bill" Off to a sailor hold, aboard the Water-Wagon-o. At least that's what Bill thinks it ought to be called since Secretary Daniels barred wine from ships of the navy.

"Old Bill" landed in Boston from a long, dry cruise. Every saloon was closed. So he had to break the windows of a barroom to get two quarts of liquid and was fined before Judge King in Superior Criminal Court. And thus Secretary Daniels' water wagon order came before the Massachusetts courts for the first time.

"The fact that there is no liquor aboard your ship is no legal excuse for breaking and entering," said Judge King. "You had better get your liquor when the doors are open three months."

HELEN PESCOSSKI, Chelsea school girl who disappeared and reappeared, and whose story is being investigated by the police.

Chelsea Police Probing Story of School Girl

The Chelsea police today investigated the strange disappearance and re-appearance of seven-year-old Helen Pescoski, daughter of Edward Pescoski, of 26 Ash street, Chelsea. Reported missing to the police she was found by an AMERICAN reporter in the home of a friend.

Helen disappeared Sunday afternoon after playing with Minnie Kelman. The reporter, after getting a description of the girl, went to the Terry School to question the little Kelman girl, and found Helen there. The police asked the child:

"Where were you last night?"

She replied: "In a house on Ar-

"No, I left under a watering spout where the water runs down the roof all night."

As Sunday night was cold, and the girl had neither hat nor coat, the police doubted this. She refused to tell where she had been, and trembled over hefty.

"The night I was missed since yesterday," said the girl.

Police in the interest of Representative George J. Wall, the only candidate in Ward 16 who is running for a second term, will be held tonight at Ionic street and Blue Hill avenue, at 8 o'clock. Mount Vernon street and Chester square at 8:15 and at Andrew square, Lieutenant-Governor Barry, Representative Leo Harlow, Arthur W. Clark and Frank L. Tramon will speak.

MAINE ELECTS DEMOCRAT TO GOVERNORSHIP

PORTLAND, Me., Sept. 15.—The return to the U. S. P. standard of thousands of voters who supported Roosevelt in 1912 failed to save votes to re-elect Governor William T. Haines, and Oakley C. Curtis, Democrat, is today Governor-elect of Maine.

The Democratic vote is a little larger than that received by Wilson, but considerably less than that of Plaisted at the state election, while Haines received more than twice as many as Taft got while about 3,000 or many as he himself had at the state election, when there was no Progressive candidate.

With fewer than forty towns still to hear from, the indications are that Curtis is elected by 2,500 plurality. Figures to date are: Curtis, Democrat, 61,145; Haines, Republican, 57,981; Gardner, Progressive, 17,415.

The four Congressmen, Asher C. Hinds, John A. Peters and Frank E. Guernsey, Republicans, and Daniel J. McGillicuddy, Democrat, were re-elected, according to the same returns as those received in the Governorship contest.

The returns indicate the Democrats have made gains in the Legislature. For Representative districts reporting have elected forty-two Democrats, forty-two Republicans and two Progressives. The same districts two years ago chose forty-two Democrats, forty-five Republicans and three Progressives. The figures are to date about the same as two years ago.

Forger, 70, Pleads for 'Another Chance' and Is Given It

Seventy-year-old Faber del Gauthier, charged with forgery in five counts, cried bitterly while he pleaded for another chance. With shaking limbs he stagered to the witness stand in Superior Court, where he told Judge King of his downfall.

"I never was in court before in my life. This is my first time," he cried. "I hope that I will never come again. It is terrible.

"I will be seventy-one years old next April. All my life I have been respected. Now I am in trouble."

He started to tell his story from the prisoner's pen, but spoke in such a low tone that Assistant District Attorney Webber suggested that he take the witness stand so that he might be more easily heard.

He was released on probation

Wilson Opposes Tax on Freight

BOY EXPLORER WINS BAY STATE GIRL IN WEEK

After a courtship of seven days, Ramon H. Millward, the "boy explorer," led to the altar in the Congregational Church of St. Paul, on Tremont street, on August 27, Miss Edna Boynton of Bryantville, according to dispatches from New York, where the couple are now spending their honeymoon.

Millward returned to America last July with a valuable collection for the Museum of Natural History. On August 19 he went to Bryantville, which is near Plymouth, to rest. On August 25 he proposed to Miss Boynton and four days later they were married.

Young Millward is wealthy, while his bride's family is in modest circumstances. Up to the time of her marriage she was a secretary for a Boston manufacturer. So sure was the marriage that many of their most intimate friends did not know of it.

Already wrecked the first romance of Millward, his Bances having married another such six months after Millward's departure for the wilds of Columbia, declare they decided to interfere with his second love affair.

The trouble with Millward's first romance really turned on whether his fiancee would accompany him on his exploring expedition. The girl refused. Miss Madeline Sylvester bitterly opposed her doing so, on the ground that her health was not robust, and in the end she listened to their counsel.

Mrs. Millward says she is prepared to follow her husband anywhere and bear any hardship that he bears.

Home Ruler Here Defends Ireland's Right to Arm

Richard McGee, M. P., who is in the United States with the avowed purpose of having 200,000 rifles for the Irish volunteers, defended his plan as no violation of neutrality, in Boston today. He is here for a few days, and, in discussing his commission, said:

"As the embargo on arms in Ireland is off, there will be no trouble in getting them, and I have been commissioned by John D. Redmond.

"As to the neutrality talk, Ireland is just as much right to buy rifles in South Africa, Australia or any other province. We already have some rifles in Ireland.

"The Irish Volunteers are a defensive force, formed to protect the homes of the members if they are ever called upon to do it. They will be drilled for war, because there is no conscription law in Great Britain."

LOST SPANISH WAR VET FOUND; GETS FORTUNE

A romantic story of how a long missing young man returned to find a fortune waiting for him came to light in South Boston today. The boy was David F. Keating. He was last heard of when he enlisted for the Spanish-American war.

Last July his father died, leaving some thousands to his son. Thomas H. Connolly, an attorney, was asked to search for Keating. Keating was traced through China and finally to San Francisco, where he was found.

Keating, now thirty-five, came home, was identified by his aunt, Mrs. Mary J. Cahill, and his uncle, Joseph G. Cahill. He will receive the estate and return at once to San Francisco.

HONG PING CHIEN AMONG MARVELS ON KEITH STAGE

The weird and marvelous is in evidence at Keith's this week, where Hong Ping Chien's troupe in Pekin mysteries are astonishing in their illusions and magic brilliancy. Some of their tricks are novelties. None of them are hackneyed or obvious.

The headliners are Will M. Cressy and Blanche Dayne in a playlet called "The Man Who Remembered." This sketch contains much human interest and the playing of both people is marked with distinction.

A burlesque role is presented by Madame Mary, and this edition is enlarged and elaborated. It is full of fresh and sparkling entertainment.

Nellie Nichols, the pretty and dashing comedienne and singer, is back from a tour of the West with a lot of new songs. She never fails to please.

McWilliams, Stendel and Baldwin, a trio of Western entertainers who have recently burst upon the Keith circuit, have a fast and fetching act and are immediately popular.

Emily and Ajax, Hamilton and Barlett and Johnson and Wells are three teams that add to the pleasure of the evening. Altogether a well balanced and thoroughly enjoyable show, quite up to the Keith standard.

LOEW'S ST. JAMES.

Heading the big show is Roland West company in "When We Grow Up." This playlet was written and staged by Edward Clarke, and the company includes Charles Eglesion, Bessie Clifford and Elsie Argus. The added feature is the "Five Merry Youngsters." Their comedy singing pleases immensely. Others to appear are the Rose Troupe, a company of comedy acrobats; Daniel Kaleiokou, the Hawaiian musician, and Richmond and Mac in a novelty singing and talking skit. A splendid list of the late photo plays is also shown.

GAIETY.

Billy Watson and his burlesquers offer a two-act musical comedy with four scenes. The first is entitled "Krousanczyer in Japan" and the second "Krousanczyer's Christening." The stories of these burlettas are not of much importance. They consist of funny situations alternating with eruptions of pretty girls in fetching costumes singing lively songs. Watson is decidedly funny, but Johnny Jess is also highly diverting, and Lillian Franklin as a Scottish girl assists materially in the fun-making. It is a big, bustling, bang-up show.

LOEW'S ORPHEUM.

A high-class all-star vaudeville show is headed by "Ye Old Time Halloween," a musical and singing act, which makes a decided hit. An added feature is the ex-Mayor of Indianapolis, Lew Shank, who keeps the audience interested in his moving picture lecture on the high cost of living. Others on the bill are Harry English and company in a comedy sketch; Bison, shoe and cleaning, colored comedians; Steward and Dekin, in modern ballroom dancing.

PLAYS THAT REMAIN.

COHAN—"Peg O' My Heart" began its second week. Florence Martin has scored a big personal hit in the title role.

TREMONT—Dashing Fanny Ward in "Madame President," commences her second week. A large audience enjoyed itself hugely the first evening.

WILBUR—William Hodge in "The Road to Happiness" has apparently caught the Boston public, for the opening of the second week brings a marked increase in attendances.

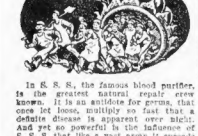
SHUBERT—"High Jinks," the effervescent comedy with music in which Stella Mayhew is featured, continues to please great audiences.

PLYMOUTH—"Along Came Ruth" is entertaining lovers of homely folks and the quick bridge lunch serving business.

COLONIAL—"Sari" in her fourth week exhibits no signs of waning popularity.

To the Rescue in Blood Diseases

Just the Help Needed to Overcome Worst Troubles.



In S. S. S., the famous blood purifier, is the greatest natural tonic ever known. It is an antidote for germs, that once let loose, multiply so fast that a definite disease is spared even a night. And yet so powerful is the influence of S. S. S. that like a vast army it spreads all through blood, checks disease, opens up all the valves of escape and throws out disease germs, through the skin, kidneys, bladder, bowels and skin.

Do not become easily stricken if a rash or boils or eruptions inflame the skin. Nature is doing her best but Nature is not the one to call on for help, and in S. S. S. is just the kind of help Nature demands, for S. S. S. a pure vegetable remedy with an action strong yet vigorously follows the blood channels and clears away refuse as it goes along. In every community are people who know this to be true. They have used S. S. S. and have their blood clean, strong and through.

Get a bottle of S. S. S. today at any drug store. Drive out those destructive germs that cause skin eruptions, sore throat, swollen glands, blood risings, painful rheumatic joints, chronic bronchitis and most all conditions of disease. Read the folder around the bottle that tells about the great work being done to assist sufferers. If you would know more about the blood and its treatment, write for special book to The Swift Specific Co., 52 Swift Bldg., Atlanta, Ga.

WAR MELODRAMA SUITS BOSTON

BLANCHE DAYNE, who with Will M. Cressy is headliner at Keith's.

By far the most elaborate and expensive production yet made at the Boston Theatre is "The Littlest Rebel," with both Dustin and William Farnum in the big roles. This melodrama of our Civil War was originally presented at the Boston Theatre with these two stars, and now that Manager Leahy has duplicated the original production in detail with the same stars he feels as though he had accomplished something noteworthy.

The title role is played by Margaret Shelby Minter, a sister of the original, and others in important roles are Joseph Crehan, Charles Guthrie, Fred Murray, Max Arnold, Jean Bruce and William Foot. Dustin Farnum plays the Northern officer and William the Southerner, and the play revolves around the theme of love and duty. It is full of fine situations and the battle scene is one of the most striking staged. Leahy has a clout of supernumeraries for the battle scene.

For next week Leahy has arranged for Blanche Walsh to appear for the first time in stock in the dramatization of Tolstoi's "Resurrection."

'CABIRIA' DRAMA WINS TREMONT TEMPLE FAVOR

Tremont Temple was filled last night at the first performance of "Cabiria," the celebrated motion picture of D'Annunzio. A large orchestra and chorus assisted. It was the most elaborate production in the local history of the film.

The large audience was present by invitation. The regular performances for the public begin this afternoon.

The pictures are so vast in their scope that description is impossible. It is necessary to see "Cabiria" to appreciate how gigantic a production it really is. The music is well rendered by the orchestra and large chorus.

"Cabiria" is a narrative of the Roman-Punic wars. It is colossally staged and a vast army is engaged in its great scenes. Buildings were constructed solely for the picture and the total cost of the production is said to run up to six figures. The great scenes include the destruction of the Roman fleet, the sacrifice in the Temple of Moloch and the battle in which many hundreds are engaged. A sweet love story threads its way among the stirring events.

GRAND OPERA HOUSE.

The French Models Burlesque company, thirty in number, with a group of charming girls, is delighting the patrons of this house. Hughey Bernard, George Martin, George Ward, Amy Allyn, Sadie Fondeller, Flossie McLeod and other favorites come in for generous applause.

CASTLE SQUARE.

John Craig's production of George Cohan's play, "Broadway Jones," will be reviewed in detail in tomorrow's AMERICAN by Frederick Johns. The piece opened last night to a large audience.

HOWARD ATHENAEUM.

Princess Devoer captured the patrons of this theatre yesterday with her Oriental dance. She is appearing in conjunction with the Howard burlesque company, which is headed by that versatile comedian, Joe Buckley.

SCOLLAY SQUARE.

The bill at the Scollay Square is topped by the Dick Howe trio novelty entertainers, Leonora Hendrix, comedienne, Tom Nawn and company, Bolini and Cortelli, Munford and Thomas and a host of equally scintillating vaudeville features.

NANTASKET.

"THE TRAP."

A new play called "The Trap" will be produced at the Majestic Theatre Thursday, September 24. It is the work of Richard Harding Davis and A. E. Thomas and will be put on by Arthur Hopkins. The cast is a big one and includes Orrin Johnson, Ralph Morgan, Charles Hickman, George Barnsdale, Tullie Marcus, Frank Arnot, Janet Beecher, H. Hammersteen and Gertrude Dawes. The sale of seats opens Thursday.

THE MODERN

"My Official Wife," a five-reel drama of Russian life and Czarist hill, a merry comedy in three reels, form the principal portions of the bill at the Modern this week. The combination makes a first-class entertainment.

PROVINCETOWN.

The management of the Dorothy Record announces that this is the last week on the east to Provincetown.

BOWDOIN SQUARE.

A varied vaudeville and moving picture bill furnishes the entertainment at the Bowdoin Square. Wyatt Mainer at the helm is proving an excellent vaudeville feature.

WALDRON'S.

LANGFORD MADE FAVORITE OVER JOHNSON IN BOUT TONIGHT AT ATLAS CLUB

BOSTON AMERICAN SPORTING NEWS

SAM LANGFORD FAVORITE FOR JOHNSON BOUT

By JACK CONWAY.

SAMUEL LANGFORD, Cambridge's dusky citizen, who is known chiefly on account of his ability to flatten the average human being with a single punch, will perform in our midst again this evening. The famous negro heavyweight is scheduled to exchange blows with flatfoot Jim Johnson in a ten-round tussle at the Atlas A. A. "Phi Ha" says that the bout will not go the limit as he is anxious to score a knockout. Johnson, however, says that the referee will be obliged to render a verdict at the end of the final stanza as he is not in need of any sleep. The battling person, however, is rude enough to hint that he is going to try and stop Langford.

We do not believe that Johnson will make good his boast, but on paper it looks as though he should be able to make things interesting for Langford. Johnson weighs 175 pounds while he is six feet tall. These advantages, of course, will aid him this evening, and as he is also footed by being a hard puncher sam will not have things all his own way.

Langford naturally rates as a favorite in the betting. It is usually good policy to stick along with a fighter who wins nineteen out of about every twenty contests. Johnson has plenty of backers and a number of bets have been made that he will last the twelve rounds.

THE Tennessee negro is one of the few men who is entitled to the heavyweight in the world. He has been meeting all-comers and does not pitch his opponents. He fought a ten-round draw with Jack Johnson in Paris last Winter. He also appeared in three hard fights with Joe Jeanette in New York, while he recently fought ten rounds with Jack Dillon in Gotham. As none of these men were able to stop Johnson, it is thought tonight that he would go the limit. For that, Langford may upset the "dope" with a single stroke.

JOHNSON is not unknown to local fans. He met Tommy Ryan at the Arena early in the Summer, and although he was knocked out in the fourth round, he battled like a rugged hunter. The referee did not permit Johnson to do more than that, as he figured that this handicapped him a great deal. Conditions will be different tonight and the referee will be allowed to hammer away to the queen's taste.

JOE WOODMAN informs us that Langford is the best fighter on the tussle. When the "Tar Baby" returned from Australia over a year ago, he was husky and slow as a cart horse. His first bout was with "Parker" Flynn, and although the heavyweight had been a little more aggressive he might have beaten Langford.

"Gunboat" Smith then met him and he won by a decision after fighting for twelve rounds of lighting. About that time, the "Tar Baby" has done a little real training and has reduced by about 187 pounds.

LANGFORD showed much of his old time form in his bout with "Kid" Cotton at the Atlas A. A. a year ago. We consider him one of the greatest pieces of fighting machinery in the history of the game, but barring an accident he should brush in a winner tonight. He is capable of knocking out if he does not he should have a comfortable margin in his favor when the bout is over. Langford will be a much better trained athlete tonight than when he met Smith. And when Smith is right he is a mighty hard man to beat.

A GOOD preliminary card has been arranged. Johnny Glover of South Boston and "Young" Shea, of Chelsea, will mix in the semi-final bout of eight rounds. Glover appeared at the Atlas about two weeks ago and won from Frank Delucca of the North End.

There will also be two ten-round contests. "Young" Clancy will meet Carl Hurtis, while Harding Ellis will entertain Barney Shea.

JOHNNY "YOUNG" LUSTIG, the clever New York lightweight, will probably meet Matty Baldwin, of Middle Marsby at the Atlas A. A. in a few weeks. Lustig is one of the most promising young fighters that has appeared in the city in many months. He is not a hard puncher, but he is a grand boxer and as fast as lightning in circling the ring.

JACK WAGNER writes from Lawrence that "Kid" Mercier will be back in the ring inside of a month. He will then be ready to meet the winner of the local welterweights. Wagner also announces that Jack Dillon, Lawrence, and Jimmy Doyle of Lowell, are ready to say that he is willing to match these boys against any boxers of their weight.

AD WOLGAST and Joe Mandot should put up a slashing fight when they meet in a ten-round bout at Ripish in Milwaukee Friday night. It will be the first boxing attempt in that city for several months. Wolgast is a big favorite throughout the Middle West but has been forced to lay off for some time on account of a broken hand. He says that the injured member is in condition and that he will carry Mandot along at a lively pace.

MANDOT has "come back" and expects to win from Wolgast by boxing faster than ever, if we are to believe the reports of his recent Milwaukee workouts. In which the New Orleans boy was credited with having a slight shade on the clever Indian youth.

FATAL FIFTEEN MINUTES FOR M'GRAW'S TEAM

By NICK FLATLEY.

Fifteen short minutes yesterday afternoon must have seemed like two or three years to one John Mc-Graw, sometime author and manager of the New York Giants.

In that short space of time ten runs were scored against the once-time leading Giants.

From 4 o'clock till quarter after that fatal hour was the Giant wrecking stretch of time.

All this happened.

The Phillies scored six big runs against the Giants in the second game of a double-header, and made on even break, the best the struggling Giants could get.

The star pitcher of the New York staff—Matty—went down to disastrous defeat.

The Braves banged "Hi" Jeff" Pfeffer for four runs, won a game, and thereby gained half a game in the hectic league race. The Braves found and the Phillies made the ten anti-Giant markers.

The confidence of the leaders was shot through to the core. Only the nose of the contenders decreased accordingly.

Until the four strokes rang out from the various clocks in Sleepyhollow, Braves were just as happy a clime—before the war. The Giants had won the first game of their double bill. The scoreboard told that the Braves were trailing the Dodgers. It looked like a big day for the monarch of Coogan Bluffs.

But then, that fifteen minutes, and other things happened along, and it was all off.

That Boston victory was more or less psychological, too. Up to the time that the Giant catastrophe had been made public by the score board, the Braves had mighty little ginger on tap. The crowd was dead and the game listless.

When the glad news from Quakertown was told, however, things changed. The crowd scattered through the Fenway stands forgot the chill and started to howl. The brave players commenced to scrap. Joe Smith, the best little pinch hitter in the well known world, worked a base on balls. Then the Braves were started to bump into the fast ball of the unfortunate Pfeffer. It was all good and sweet.

But that fifteen minutes may tell the story of the greatest pennant race in history.

MITCHELL'S SIDELIGHTS ON SPORTS

CAPTAIN JOHNNY EVERS, of the Braves, returns to the game today after an enforced absence of three playing days.

In a game with the Phillies last week Johnnie stepped up a fly to the outfield at a critical point of the battle.

He said some things.

The umpire said Johnnie said the things to him and Johnnie said he said the things to the ump. At any rate the umpire resented the remarks to headquarters and Johnny drew a suspension.

IT is to be hoped that Johnnie, now that he is back in harness, will hesitate to even talk to the ump.

They need him a thousand times more now than they did during the league race when they early in the season when they were nearly twenty games behind the Giants.

JOHNNIE may be in the habit of talking to himself, but he is a better cut that out, too. Some umpire might think he was addressing the remarks to him.

From now on, to avoid all mistakes, it would be well if Johnnie was a gag during the games.

SOME persons, especially New Yorkers, might think that because the Braves piled up six or seven errors in the second Brooklyn game, they have no cause to win a National League pennant.

But that's all right. It is better to make a lot of errors and win a game than to play a perfect fielding game and lose the battle.

However, there is no denying the fact that a wild chuck or a boot or a muff, at this particular stage of the National League race sends the cold shivers up and down the spine—that is, of course, when our boys do the booting and muffing. If the other fellows err, the effect is stimulating.

IT is a peculiar thing, now that it has been demonstrated the Boston Nationals can become a winning team, that various syndicates of Boston men are tumbling over themselves with offers to buy the Braves at big figures. But Mr. Gaffney says the Braves are not for sale.

TEN years ago the club could have been bought for $75,000. One man did plank down a $5,000 forfeit and then tried to raise the other $70,000 among Boston people. He couldn't raise a nickel, and Messrs. Soden and Conant pocketed the $5,000 forfeit.

A YEAR or two later George B. Dovey came from Pittsburg and bought the club for $75,000. When he died John D. Harris of Pittsburg bought it at cost. Then William Hepburn Russell of New York bought it for a slight advance, and when he died John M. Ward of New York secured an option on it, but Mr. Gaffney interested and the club was turned over to them.

BOSTON men of means laughed and for a year everybody said Mr. Gaffney had procured a lemon.

Now they all want to buy the club.

Funny, isn't it?

THE Braves have twenty-five games to play; the Giants, 24. Today the Braves lead the Giants by two and one-half games. They led the Giants by two and one-half games last Friday, but the percentage in favor of the Braves is much greater now than it was on Friday.

THERE is dissatisfaction with managers in various cities of the National and American League circuits.

There are rumors that they are looking for a man to supplant Hank O'Day, manager of the Cubs, although his contract does not expire at the end of this season.

Cleveland is said to be ready to get rid of Birmingham.

In New York there is trouble between Manager Chance of the Yanks and Frank Farrell, who owns the club.

Managers of big league clubs are in the habit of saying that there are not enough good ball players to supply the two big leagues.

Stallings has no trouble in getting enough ball players to run his club into first place.

It would seem that the trouble is not in getting enough good ball players, but in securing enough good managers.

THE Brooklyns go away from here tonight, and tomorrow the St. Louis Cardinals come to town.

As a result of the Sunday games the Cards pushed ahead of the Cubs in the race and as things stand today they are five full games behind the Braves.

If Stallings' men can take all three from the Huggins tribe, it will put the Westerners out of it, as the same time put Boston and at the same time put Boston in a position from which it will be hard to dislodge them.

After the St. Louis series the fans of Boston will know more about which team will win the pennant than they know today.

RED SOX AND SENATORS MEET IN FINAI GAME OF BIG SERIES THIS AFTERNOON IN WASHINGTON

HARVARD SQUAD TO HAVE DOUBLE SESSION DAILY

If one is wont to believe in signs, one will have little chance to see the Harvard football forces practicing for the 1914 campaign; for spread about the iron fences surrounding Soldiers Field, as well as plastered on conspicuous places within the enclosures, are placards signed by Frew W. Moore, graduate manager of Harvard athletics, warning that "Trespassing on these premises is forbidden."

With the exception of next Saturday, football practice at Harvard until September 23 will be divided into morning and afternoon sessions. This rule went into effect this morning when the squad gathered at the locker building for work with Trainer Percy Donovan and Coach Leo Leary in charge.

SIXTY-EIGHT MEN IN LINE.

The work today is to be a mite more strenuous than yesterday, now that the squad of sixty-eight men have had a chance to become acclimated to a little more rugged employment. Several newcomers may drop in to augment the hard during the day, although it seems about everybody of importance reported at the sound of the opening gong yesterday.

The candidates for guard were mainly of the rangy type, several of them being close to the 190-pound weight. Manager W. Fenwick, from Walter Camp tapped for his All-American first eleven, was among this bunch, presenting a front that would have made former President Taft wildly envious.

The biggest man in the bunch is chunky Lorenzo Day of Brookline, a candidate for centre who weighs 216 pounds.

STAR PLAYERS OVER WEIGHT.

Charley Brickley when he returned from the South a fortnight ago balanced the beam at only 173 pounds. Home cooking later, combined with the social atmosphere of Newport, where he spent many days with Coach Haughton, has pushed the Brickley avoirdupois up to 190 pounds.

Even Eddie Mahan proudly proved that he had five pounds the better of last season by weighing 175 pounds. Tack Hardwick and Jeff Coolidge are both at about the same weight as last year, with Walter Trumbull, varsity centre, and Fred Bradlee a trifle under their normal avoirdupoise.

Every one of the Yale game veterans—nine in all—answered the call, including Ernie Soucy, Mal Logan and Dawson Cowan.

Coaches Bob Fisher, Paul Withington, Rex Hitchcock and Bob Gailmarshalled the line men in the machine and put them to passing the medicine ball, practicing starts, falling on the ball, etc., ending up with a twenty-minute session with the four dummies and a jog around the field.

Leo Leary and Gil Brown gave the ends and the backs the same medicine. Tom Campbell took hold of the backfield.

SIGNAL DRILL TRIED.

Early in the afternoon Captain Brickley and "Blink" Mcklinlock exerted their voices with the signals, with a field goal duel with the Everett youth showing slightly the best form.

Several practice backfields were formed and sent through the mill, and down the gridiron in signal drill. Mal Logan directed one combination, which was composed of Brickley, Mahan and Mcklinlock as a backfield with Trumbull at centre.

Two devices originated by Derry Parmenter last year to assist the centres in accuracy have arrived at the field and the candidates for this position will be given a stiff tryout at them tomorrow.

A round black spot is painted on an upright board quite similar to the same height one would hold his hands when awaiting a pass from centre for a kick or forward pass. The centre gets in position and passes the ball at the blackened spot.

Shrubb to Return Early to Harvard

Coach Alfred Shrubb, of the Harvard Cross Country team will return to his duties at Cambridge next week, probably on Monday, when Captain Harry MacIlvre calls out the members of the squad to prepare for the season's novel. A campaign is already on at Harvard to create more of an interest in the cross country sport and a goodly opening for this is expected. Races have already been booked with Cornell and Yale.

The regular track men will not be summoned until September 23 when college reopens.

Driver Frost was fined $100 by the judges for not trying to win the 2:07 pace with Lady Daphne. Garrison drove the final heat and won easily.

SOX-SENATORS IN FINAL GAME OF BIG SERIES

WASHINGTON, Sept. 15.—The Red Sox wind up their series here today with the Senators, which also marks the final appearance of the Boston boys here this season.

Carrigan is more than anxious to even up matters with Griff's stars following yesterday's defeat in the opening game of the double-header, the first of which went to the locals 8 to 1 and the second to the Boston crew 3 to 0.

Ernie Shore was on the slab in the first session and his downfall came as a distinct surprise and shock. Manager Carrigan, who had little to say after the game except to inform Griff that Washington had found the best youngster in the league.

Shore was the victim of a lot of poor support, which explains why Washington rolled up eight runs in four innings, but on the other hand Mr. Shore cannot explain how the Griff crew got behind the twisters for nine hits, including a triple and a double.

There was nothing to the farewell contest but Collins' pitching and some long-distance batting by Hoblitzell and Scott.

Griff opposed Collins with Jack Bentley, a kid southpaw, who last week shut out the Athletics, allowing one hit. Bentley could not get his bearings at the start, but settled down after Carrigan's crew had jarred him loose from three runs.

Hobby nearly wrecked the right field fence with a couple of savage drives, and Bentley, for one, will tell you that some left-handed hitters can connect with southpaw flinging.

Red Sox Buy Two Providence Hurlers

PROVIDENCE, Sept. 15.—Manager William Donovan of the Providence club has just announced in New York the sale of Pitcher Carl Mays and Centrefielder Guy Tutwiler to the Boston Red Sox for delivery at the end of this season. The deal has been hanging fire for some time.

This will not be Tutwiler's first big league engagement, as he has been with Detroit twice before. Mays is the Gray's leading pitcher, having won 23 out of 31 games.

"Vanitie won. Very much pleased."

Vanitie is the two-year-old colt Madden shipped to England just before war was declared. He won today at the Doncaster meeting.

ROBINS LINE UP WITH BRAVES IN FAREWELL GAME

By A. H. MITCHELL.

Last chance today to see the Brooklyns play in Boston. These visitors have proved the big stumbling block to Stallings' men. The proportion of games won weighs heavily on the Brooklyn side of the ledger.

The Dodgers are the one team in the National League that has put it all over the Braves in the scoring accounts. And if the Braves win today — which we all hope and pray they will—they will still be far behind the Brooklyns in the inter-city series.

But, we don't care so much about what has already passed. We are looking for daily victories and confidently expect the Braves to win today. Brooklyn's troublesome pitchers are out of the way for the present and if the Robins put in Nap Rucker today, our boys will not be afraid of him.

They say Rucker didn't have anything against the Giants last week but coaxed his way through to a victory. He can't come that kind of a game here in Boston. He will have to show.

It is likely that James will face the Dodgers in the final battle. James pitched an inning on Saturday, but that don't count. He really hasn't worked since Thursday so that he has had a good rest and ought to deliver the goods if called upon.

Captain Johnnie Evers will be back on second base again and that ought to help.

JAMES PICKED TO WIN FINAL FROM DODGERS

WHAT MAY HAPPEN TODAY.

If the Braves win and the Giants lose, the Braves will lead the league by three full games.

If the Braves win and the Giants win, the Braves will hold their lead o two games and a half.

If the Braves lose and the Giants win, the Braves will lead the pennant by a game and a half.

If the Braves lose and the Giants lose, the Braves will lead the league by their present margin, two games and a half.

By NICK FLATLEY.

The same old story—the old game gets—that brought the fighting Braves up out of the cellar into the lead, has been resurrected. The margin now is 1902 to the good and it's seven errors and all the Chicagos have to do to win out yesterday, ninety innings to go through with the task.

Any other pitcher would have blown, but "Hairless Joe" James went right along and managed to stay under the wire in front through one of the hardest games he has been called upon to pitch this season.

However, this is another day, and Jack Evers of Troy and Cincinnati will be on the job. It was the Troyite's especially young Boston, who broke up yesterday's greatest offensive and with the big guy pitching he and Evers can close it, fewer boots and fumbles should be in order.

Big Bill James, who was called through his last six appearances with considerable edge, is listed to face one of the leaders and unless he shows an entirely unexpected reversal of form, the leaders will have to go some to get quite a difficult performance for the Bostonians, who play here for the last time this season.

The way they got to Dedeaux has been generally considered the "Second Matty," the feat of the Athletic twirler in holding the other nine clubs too scoreless should send a shudder through the Braves, while with a whole lot of added confidence, the Giants have been going fairly good to down this season, but the most of the other stars have been powerless to stem the Boston artillery, unleashed in the fifth inning.

WIN A GREAT BOOST.

For the Braves today, Southpaw Allen or Reulbach are scheduled to do the flinging. Second division and all, the Braves have been playing fine ball most time with an inch longer an some Rockets would have been landed and the last battle of the series promises to be just as hot as the ones that preceded.

Yesterday's win was a mighty big boost for the Braves, for the victory ages to break even as the teams did last week the Braves gained exactly two games and they have a good chance to repeat this present spell of baseball. If they can do so, the pennant battle will be mighty close to being won, for the longer the leaders can hold off the Giants, the more difficult the task of picking up the last ground will be. A few more wins for the Braves and Giant hopes will start to fall with a loud resounding thud.

CARDS HERE TOMORROW.

After the Dodgers go, some the Cardinals, who still have the idea they are in the pennant hunt and will sure fight to the last gasp to get into the three money class, are going to the tenders. However, with a last round of games when in eight attempts the Cards have won one game, it is not likely any alarm by the Sidney Ducats.

The Cardinals just at present feel that full games look to the Braves and have half a dozen former games ahead. Consequently, if they fail to win on their own grounds, they will just about be in position to sing their swan song. And the Braves will be very anxious to give a downward turn to one of the clubs that showed signs of adopting their style to the game.

Great preparations are being made for Ivers Day, which will be celebrated tomorrow. Besides a great outpouring of Boston fans, a big rooting party will journey over from Troy, the home of the Keystone King. One of the most exciting feature days of the season is in order.

Nor will any one deny that Johnny deserves all the honor and glory that can be given him, even though he is just now the highest priced player in baseball.

WALTHOUR WINS REVENGE RACE IN RECORD RIDE

Bobby Walthour was the winner of the championship "revenge" race at the Revere cycle track, smashing the track record for 20 heats by covering forty-four miles and one lap.

Clarence Carman, who won the American championship a week ago, was second, less than 100 yards behind.

The race upset the championship result. In the championship race Carman won by about 100 yards, but in the "revenge" event Walthour turned the tables and had almost the same margin.

W. L. Mitten was third, covering forty-two miles and six laps, while George Wiley, former champion, brought up in the rear, fifty yards behind Mitten.

Mitten took the lead at the start, and on the third mile, while Walthour was trying to cross, he had lost his pace, and it cost him a lap. The Southerner quickly got going and on the fifteenth mile took the lead.

Carman's motor skipped on the twenty-fifth mile and Walthour gained a lap. On the thirty-first mile Walthour was almost two laps ahead of Carman.

The thirty-sixth mile was too hot for Walthour and he was shaken.

From that point on Carman fought to get the two laps. When the two minutes of the finish Walthour was again shaken, but he managed to hold Carman off.

New England Golf Women Up Near Top in Title Tourney

GLEN COVE, L. I., N. Y., Sept. 15.—The first round in the national championship tournament over the links of the Nassau County Club is played today.

Miss Georgiana M. Bishop of the Brooklawn Country Club, Bridgeport, Conn., a former title holder, led the field in the qualifying round and won the gold medal with the low score of 85, an excellent performance.

Another former national champion, Mrs. Arnold H. Jackson of Oakley, Mass., who as Miss K. C. Harley of Hull Street, won the Essex County chase, Md., six years ago, was second with 87.

Among the thirty-two who qualified with scores of 96 and under there are five Western representatives.

Miss Caroline Painter, Midlothian Country Club, Baltimore; Miss Louise Swabacker and Miss Elaine Rosenthal, both of the Ravisloe Country Club, Homewood, Ill., and Mrs. E. H. Steedman and Miss Grace Seaver of St. Louis, who by the luck of the draw play against each other today.

Miss Alexa Sterling, and eighteen-year-old girl from Atlanta, Ga., was the only qualifier from the south, while the New England and Philadelphia districts are well represented in the championship division.

It is the same now as formerly. Everyone seems in a hurry to call the waiter and give the order for Pickwick Ale. Its delicious flavor appeals to all.

The Manicure Lady

By WILLIAM F. KIRK

"GEE, George, but this is a beautiful Fall morning, ain't it?" said the Manicure Lady, entering the shop with less languor than usual. "It makes a person feel kind of sparkly, like champagne."

"I didn't notice it much," said the Head Barber. "You can't get much of a slant at Fall weather riding down town in the cars, and the cars is right at my door."

"I think folks ought to be assigned not to notice all of them beauties of Nature which is provided for us to look at," said the Manicure Lady. "For we always go along looking down at the ground we ain't going to see ever one single stare, and half of life is in seeing what little of it there is that is grand and beautiful."

"There ain't no occasion for any monologue," said the Head Barber. "I didn't happen to notice anything grand about the morning, and I don't feel sparkly like champagne, either. I feel as stale this morning as a glass of dead beer."

"You must have went to a party somewhere last night," said the Manicure Lady. "I hope that you ain't getting into your second childhood altogether, George. It's bad enough for you to take them horses you do betting on the ponies, but I should hate to think you was going in for late hours."

"I was in bed at 10 o'clock, so there ain't no reason like late hours," said the Head Barber. "All the trouble with me is, I've got one of them colds. My head feels like a attic full of old trash. I haven't drew a good long breath for three days."

"There ain't no excuse for anybody to have a cold if they will only try mental science," said the Manicure Lady. "Mayme told me about it last week when my head was stuffed up, and I got my mind on a lot of cheerful and beautiful things and tried hard not to think at all of the cold I had, and sure enough, the next day it was gone. And it wasn't easy thinking of cheerful and beautiful things, either. You know how cranky the boss here has been lately, and up to the house the old gent is about like a lion caught in a trap. The gout has got dear old father, and it has got him for fair. His right foot is as big as his head, and he wears a number eight hat at that. I suppose father is beginning to get punished for some of the early years that he spent getting his elbows worn on a mahogany rail, but anyhow he is about the goutiest gent you ever seen."

"Why doesn't he try that mental science?" asked the Head Barber.

"I asked him to," said the Manicure Lady, "and he near took the top of my head off. When I told him to think that he didn't have the gout he looked at his foot and then at me, kind of reproachful, and then he said that a man who had the gout and thought he didn't have it ought to be rushed to the asylum as soon as they could send for the keepers. I suppose gout is one of the things that won't cure, but I know it cured the cold in my head. I wish you would try it, George, and it won't cost you nothing to think you are well."

"No," said the Head Barber, "and it don't cost me nothing to know that I am sick, either, but I know I am. Well, well! Here comes a customer."

I used the remedies a year and I can do my work and for the last eight months I have worked for other women, too. I cannot praise Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound enough, for I know I never would have been as well if I had not taken it, and I recommend it to suffering women."

Daughter Helped Also.

"I gave it to my daughter when she was thirteen years old. She was in school and was a nervous wreck, and could not sleep nights. Now she looks so healthy that even the doctor speaks of it. You can publish this letter if you like."—MRS. RENA ROWMAN, 161 S. 10th Street, Ironton, Ohio.

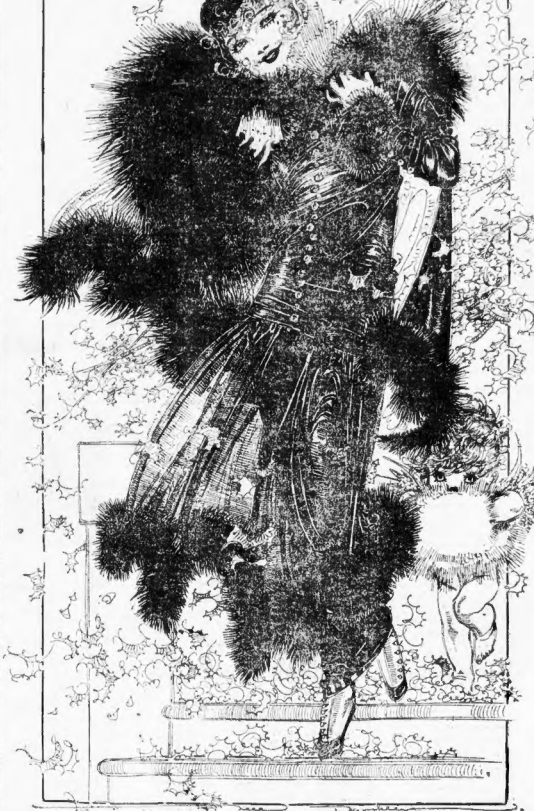
Why will women continue to suffer day in and day out and drag out a sickly, half-hearted existence, missing three-fourths of the joys of living, when they can find health in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound?

It has helped thousands of women who have been troubled with displacements, inflammation, ulceration, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, that bearing down feeling, indigestion, and nervous prostration, after all other means have failed. Why don't you try it?

"A Week from the First Katydid"

Is the Autumn Girl By NELL BRINKLEY

Copyright, 1910, by International News Service



"SIX weeks," says the farmer, wading through the grass beginning to golden, and cocking his head to one side to listen well, "six weeks from the first locust is the first katydid, and a week from the first katydid is frost!" And frost means the Winter-girl-a-coming. In furs and the floating skirts and the soldierly little cape-dolman and the basque that creases round her waist, and the tiny cocked hat of the Highlander, all in the latest mode!

Six weeks from the first locust is the first katydid, and a week from the first katydid is the frost and the Autumn-girl! I have already heard and seen all three—and I can feel the wine in the air and hear the dead golden leaves a-skipping!—NELL BRINKLEY.

Edith Flatly Accuses Her Father of Spoiling Her by Too Much Indulgence.

By VIRGINIA TERHUNE VAN DE WATER.

CHAPTER LII.

THERE is nearly always a deadly lull that follows upon agitation or excitement of any kind. Especially in this the case when the excitement has been of a painful nature, racking nerves and trying tempers. While one is in the midst of the turmoil there is a wild desire to escape it, but when it is all over and life returns to its uneventful calm one is suddenly overcome by ennui or saddened by the deadly monotony of existence.

Edith Hale was disagreeably aware of this state of affairs in her home during the days following upon Constance's departure. John Hale—with an authority which his wife and daughter did not dispute—instructed them to inform the servants and any neighbors who might ask about Constance that the girl had not been well and had gone to visit friends in the hope that the change of air might be beneficial to her.

"Later," the master of the house said, "when Constance gets tired of playing the fool and lets us know her whereabouts—if she ever does—we can give some equally plausible excuse for her absence. For, of course, she must not return here."

"Of course not!" rejoined his wife. Even while she wished that she knew where "the child" was she looked at Edith and hardened her heart against the offender. Yes she felt depressed as she set about to transform Constance's room into the guest chamber that it had been before the girl's advent into the home. Gathering up the various articles that her niece had left behind her, the aunt put them away in a box on the top shelf of her own closet.

She was ashamed to feel the tears rise to her eyes as she did this, and she told herself that it was only because she was remembering her poor sister—Constance's mother.

SHE THINKS OF THE MOTHER OF CONSTANCE

"Up in Heaven, where she is now," mused the pious soul, "she must know. It is not our fault that Constance has behaved as she has. If the dead do knew what goes on down here they must be mighty uncomfortable sometimes. And if they don't know, they must be uneasy, too. That's one thing about the state of the blessed that I never can understand, so why think about it? I've got plenty of earthly things to bother me yet a while."

One of these "things" was her daughter's restlessness and moodiness. Probably the dear child was grieving over Constance's unkindness and was still suffering from the shock of Tom's treachery and accident. Indeed, early this morning Edith had betrayed what was on her mind by bringing to her mother the engagement ring that Tom had given her weeks ago.

"What shall I do with this?" she had asked, looking at it with an expression of aversion. "I don't want to keep it a minute longer. Suppose he dies!"

"You'd better ask father what he advises you to do," her mother counselled. Then she queried timidly: "By the way, dearie, has Ralph spoken yet of an engagement ring?"

The girl frowned. "Good heavens, mother!" she exclaimed petulantly, "do let me get over the wretchedness of one engagement before you talk about my being bound fast by another ring. Besides, I don't want to think about it now—certainly not until I get this hateful thing out of the house."

That evening she handed the ring to her father. "What shall I do with it?" she asked.

Mr. Hale did not reply at once but turned the diamond this way and that, watching the beautiful stone flash in the light from the chandelier above him. He was a connoisseur in diamonds and he appreciated the beauty of this one. He felt a sudden pang almost like pity as he recalled how Tom Morton had shown it to him and how pleased the lad had seemed when the older man had expressed his admiration of his selection. Then, as suddenly, he remembered what had happened since then and his face grew stern.

HE AGREES TO TAKE THE RING TO TOM

"I will wrap it up and take it in to Tom's office and instruct his clerk to put it away in the safe," he said harshly. "Nobody will know what it is. Of course you want to get rid of it. It would have been in better taste had you returned it the very hour you broke your engagement."

"I have never worn it since then," the girl muttered sullenly.

"Where's Ralph this evening?" her father asked, attributing her unhappy demeanor to her lover's absence.

"A business man from the South is in town and could only see him tonight," she explained.

"That's too bad," sympathized the parent.

Edith shrugged her shoulders. "Oh, I don't mind so much," she said indifferently. "I've seen Ralph so often lately that we've both gotten talked out. I do wish there was something pleasant or interesting to do in this place! Thanks to Constance's behavior, the house is like a tomb. She, at all events, was fun to talk to—and she could at least amuse one by playing the piano. You're depressed, mother has the blues, and as for me—well, I'm bored to extinction!"

Her father looked at her keenly and disapprovingly. "I think, my dear," he remarked "when one feels as you do it is a good plan to do something for somebody else or to go and see some one who is in real trouble or who needs cheering. It would help you to get out of your selfish thoughts if you did this. Why, instead of moping around the house as you have been doing for the past few days, don't you go and see some poor sick person—Ralph's mother, for instance? You said she was ill the other night, yet you haven't been near her."

"She'd only talk about Ralph and about her ailments all the time," the girl objected. "But I suppose, now that you speak of it, it would be the decent thing to do. But that will bore me, too."

The petulant tone irritated the man and he spoke testily. "You're spoiled to death, Edith," he declared. "That's what's the matter with you! You're spoiled to death!"

EDITH ASKS HER FATHER WHO SPOILED HER

"If I am," she retorted, sharply, "who's fault is it, please?"

And before her astounded parent could find a reply to her apt question she walked away, leaving him staring blankly at the open doorway through which she had passed.

PARENTS AND THE GOOD THEY DO

By DOROTHY DIX.

PARENTS is the folks that was right on you when you was so little and weak you couldn't help yourself.

Also you pick out your parents when you are so young that anybody can take you in and unload any kind of a gold brick on you. That's why we didn't all choose Mr. Rockefeller or Mr. Astor or Mr. Vanderbilt for a parent.

Parents consist of two people, nine-tenths of which is a lady parent. I do not know why Pa last as much of a Pa as a Ma is a Ma, only he isn't. However, it is nice and stylish to have a gentleman parent, and he comes in handy for paying the bills.

As a general thing you have two parents, but some little boys and girls whose mammas and papas have spent the Summer at Reno have a nice collection of different parents. This is perfectly grand at Christmas time and birthdays, and makes all the other children who have only two measley parents look like thirty cents. Parents are very strong, and they can do what they please, and nobody dast stop them. I saw a great big man, about seven feet high, hit a little boy who was no kin to him. And all the people on the street who saw it began yelling, "Coward!" "Brute!" "Lynch him!" and the police had to come running to save him from the crowd.

But when my papa, who is a great big man, big as a giant I expect, whips me everybody says, "Spare the rod and spoil the child," and that they are glad that there is one parent that has got good old-fashioned ideas about how to raise up his children.

Parents are also very wise, and they know just what is good for you and what is bad for you. Everything that you don't like is good for you, and everything that you want to do is bad for you.

That is why your kind parents make you eat bread and milk while they eat pie, and why they make you go to Sunday School while they go off in the automobile to the golf links.

I expect parents are the greatest liars in the world, for they always tell you whoppers. They tell you that if you won't cry when they leave you at home and they go out to have a good time, that they will bring you something nice, and then when they come home they haven't got a thing. And they promise you that they will take you to the movie tomorrow, and they don't do it.

And they tell you that when your birthday comes that they will give you a great big doll with blue eyes and real hair, and that says "ma-ma and pa-pa" when you press on its tummy, and you wait and wait for it, and it seems like your birthday is never going to come, and then they give you a pair of rubber overshoes instead of the doll. I bet that Ananias and Sapphira, that were struck dead for lying, were parents.

There are a great many different kinds of parents. There are poor parents, who are the most parents of anybody, and there are rich parents, who are the parents of just one poor, sickly little child, and there are real rich and fashionable parents, who are just the parents of a Pomeranian dog that takes after them.

Mr. Roosevelt likes parents, but they are not popular in apartment houses.

Parents are useful because they tell us of our faults, and say, "Don't" to us.

Oh, how we should love our good, kind parents!

New Way to Treat the Hair

The air is full of floating dust, dirt and disease germs, which settle upon the hair.

There is a natural oil on the head that holds the dust fast, and in a short time you have dandruff, itching scalp and falling hair.

The pores in the scalp are stopped up, the hair roots get no nourishment, and then the hair begins to fall out. Cleanliness is the one thing needed, and Birt's Head Wash is the ideal shampoo to bring it about. Its use will put the hair and scalp in a healthy, natural condition, so that faded, lifeless hair may resume its natural color and vigor.

Birt's Head Wash is made of Refined Creamy Soap, Cochin Cocoanut Oil, White of Eggs, Glycerin and Salicylic Acid. There are no better things than these known for cleansing the hair and scalp, and doctors will tell you so if you ask them.

"Well, isn't that remarkable enough?"

"Yes," answered Weary Willie; "you might say that Jimmy took dinner with me."

A SCIENTIFIC WAY TO REMOVE UNSIGHTLY HAIR

Apply a few drops of El Rado, the liquid hair remover, on the growth; after washing off with a little plain water not a trace of it will remain. The ingredients in El Rado are used by many physicians for exactly the same purpose, which proves conclusively how perfectly harmless it is.

This wonderful preparation is the result of a long series of scientific experiments, and in proving a veritable godsend to women troubled with hair growths on lip, chin, cheek, neck or arms. Use a simple application of El Rado to saturate the hair; it is harmlessly dissolved, and in a few moments is gone, leaving the skin smooth, clear and velvety. The action of El Rado is absolutely safe, sure and thorough.

El Rado is coming to be regarded by society women as indispensable as face cream or toilet water. Try it on your arm; prove for yourself it will do everything claimed. Your money back if you are not entirely satisfied. 50c and $1 the bottle, at all leading drug and department stores in the United States, Canada, Cuba, New York Society, Illustrated booklet on request.—ADVERTISEMENT.

Mlle Regina Badet, of the Capucines Theatre, Paris, says: "To use Savon Cadum is both a pleasure and a satisfaction. No other soap is so soothing to the skin."

A pure soap revitalizes the skin tissues that have become dormant through neglect or abuse from the use of powders, cosmetics or cheap soap. The safest course in preserving beauty is to keep as close as possible to nature's laws by cleaning the face night and morning with Savon Cadum, the famous French Complexion soap. Fels-Naptha Soap was not intended to be the "Fountain of Youth," but it has made so many women better by making their work easier, that it has restored their youth as well as their health.

Fels-Naptha makes every line of housework easier. On washday, it gets the clothes out on the line in half the time, with half the trouble. On house-cleaning days, it whitens the paint, cleans the woodwork, brightens up brass, and takes stains out of carpets and rugs. When you wash dishes, it dissolves the grease and makes silver and glassware shine. It does all these things in cool or lukewarm water. No need to boil clothes to whiten them.

Mrs. Sensible Thanks Anty Drudge

Mrs. Sensible—"Well, Anty Drudge, I started my housecleaning the beginning of the week, and today I finished it. I thought I'd run over and let you see how Fels-Naptha Soap works for me. I'm not even tired, and am through this year in less than half the time it used to take."

Anty Drudge—"I wish Mrs. Onceyoung could hear you tell me this. I was just talking to her the other day and told her you used Fels-Naptha Soap now. I wish I could get her to use it; she'd be so much happier and better."

FELS & CO., PHILADELPHIA

GOLD AND GRAIN TWO BIG SIGNS

By W. H. ROSS.
Financial Editor.

The most important of events within twenty-four hours in relation to trade and finance were the engagement of millions of dollars in gold for Ottawa and the radical decline in grain prices at Chicago. Gold shipments are expected to redound to the credit of this country abroad and the slump in "grain prices are attributed to various causes. By some it is thought that battle success of the allies indicates that the war will not be of long duration, others that the recent slump was not warranted in view of the supplies which the world has in sight; that it was due mostly to speculation and that a reaction was inevitable. There is hope that the London Stock Exchange will re-open before November 1 and set the lead for New York and other American exchanges. It seems as if sentiment is taking a brighter tinge day by day.

Buying by Armour & Co. and others is the reason assigned for the advance of wheat from 1 to 2 cents when the Chicago market opened today. There were fractional gains for corn and oats.

ANOTHER RATE PETITION.

Another petition for permission to advance freight rates will be filed with the Interstate Commerce Commission by Eastern railroads. The application is now being prepared and this proceeding will be given first time in formulating schedules to fit the recent ruling of the commission. President Willard of the Baltimore & Ohio, who is in charge of the preparation of the new request, has called upon the commission and told them that the roads are going to ask for further consideration of the case. It seeks, as previously embodied in the plea for a 5 per cent. increase. In Washington it is believed that the commission now has a clearer idea of how President Wilson stands in regard to the railroad request than it had before.

HIGHER RATES WOULD HELP.

It has been said many times recently that if American railroads could show more net earnings the disposition of foreign holders of their securities to liquidate would be much less. In many quarters it is thought that wholesale selling by Europeans just before stock markets closed was due to fear of the roads' war, but that steadily decreasing earnings was partly responsible. For months in fact the American railroad stocks have lacked sanguine support at home. The war may be responsible for instance for the decrease of $2,201,563 in the earnings of Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul during the year ended by June last, compared with those of the previous twelve months. It is hard to find anything in their recent reports which would sustain the charge that they are not paying adequate dividends. During the last fiscal year the St. Paul reduced its operating expenses $1,053,806.

COTTON "STRADDLE" SYNDICATE.

It is stated that New York Cotton Exchange managers are considering a tentative plan which provides that a syndicate shall take over the outstanding "straddle" interest existing between the New York and Liverpool markets, amounting to 300,000 bales. It is proposed, it is understood, that liquidation of open contracts shall be at the arbitrary price of nine cents a pound. Nothing official has been announced about the scheme, but it is claimed it is aimed at a question whether the syndicate will assume bona fide delivery of the contracts outstanding here at nine cents and allow the "straddle" to work out, or take Liverpool basis and liquidate the entire interest on the basis of 5.61d for Liverpool January-February and nine cents in the local market.

COPPER AND STEEL QUIET.

It is understood that 12¾ cents a pound is the lowest price at which copper has sold lately and there has been little business at any figure. Domestic consumers are showing no disposition to stock up at present prices. Naturally European demand is at a low ebb. When there is revival of demand it is probable that it will be very heavy. Production has been so much curtailed that stocks of producers on hand there are likely to command a good price. The steel industry is quiet and demand slack. But prices remain unchanged. August production was small and September is not expected to show any improvement. There is a good deal of guessing as to what the earnings of the United States Steel Corporation will be for the third quarter of the year, which ends with this month. One manufacturer estimates that they will be around $9,000,000. If this estimate is correct and a marked improvement does not feature the last quarter, the corporation should show for the year a deficit of more than $20,000,000. That would mean, it is pointed out, less than 1 per cent. earned on common stock.

MOTOR NOTES

By J. C. KERRISON.

Special arrangements are being made for the exhibiting and demonstrating of both pleasure cars and motor trucks at the National Exposition and Motor Show to be held in New York early next month.

Nearly all leading manufacturers of electric vehicles will be represented by exhibits, and in addition a number of accessory makers are to take part. Model garages completely equipped for the charging and care of electric vehicles and battery exhibits are included.

A ten-lap track will be available on the third floor of the Grand Central Palace, where the exposition is to be held, and on this track electric vehicles of all types will be shown in action and demonstrations made for prospective buyers.

One of the immediate results of the outbreak of the great European war was the cutting off of the world's product of magnetite, which heretofore has come from Austria.

Recently, however, the discovery was made of the first large magnetite mine in California, and when the Austrian supply was cut off a fleet of Jeffery Quads left Los Angeles in quick service to haul the magnesite to tidewater, since then deliveries are made on the steamship Nebraska, which was the first freight steamer to pass through the Panama canal from the West.

Throwing Bombshells from Aeroplanes and Dirigibles

Thus Far Little Real Results Accomplished. How Such Attacks Will Be Met

Copyright, 1914, by the Star Company

German airships of the dirigible type—that is to say, floating balloons lighter than the air—have dropped bombshells on Antwerp and Paris, killing several individuals, including women and children.

The killing, of course, could have no possible effect upon the war.

Taking it for granted that the Germans would not authorize aimless killing, it is to be assumed that the object was to destroy the courage of the enemy. To create apprehension in the breast of your opponent is WAR.

One flying machine, an aeroplane heavier than air, dropped five bombshells, which did practically no harm at all, into the city of Paris. The message, dropped with the bombs, read: "The German army is at your gates. You have nothing to do but surrender."

This, of course, was a theatrical and daring act on the part of the German officer. If often repeated, there is no question that it would demoralize the inhabitants of a city subjected to a destructive rain from the sky, and that is doubtless the German intention.

The report of a German attack on Paris in a flying machine says that the officer in charge of the machine came flying at very great speed at a height so great "as to make attack upon him impossible."

At the height at which he flew, presumably many thousands of feet in the air, it was not possible to bring him down with rifle fire, or with any machine gun that the French had ready.

This does not mean, however, that similar attacks could not be repulsed.

If an eagle should fly over a city ten thousand or twenty thousand feet in the air and drop bombs, the inhabitants with rifles could not interfere.

BUT ANOTHER EAGLE COULD INTERFERE.

And in Paris, while the citizens on the ground could not interfere with the German officer's flying machine, or his bombs, or his intimidating message, OTHER FLYING MEN IN THE AIR COULD INTERFERE IF THEY WERE READY FOR THE EMERGENCY.

Now that it becomes understood that cities not under attack, not besieged, are open to casual attack from above, the method of procedure will necessarily become definite on the part of those attacked.

Paris gentlemen who usually watch the stars at night with telescopes will probably be ordered to stay upon high points night and day, upon the Eiffel Tower, for instance, and watch for the enemy's flying machine.

Other flying machines armed with repeating guns, light in weight but sufficient in execution, will be kept in readiness.

The moment the enemy is sighted, the flying machines of the city attacked will rise—not one machine, but a dozen or more. And the murderous engine coming from afar will be met by a superior number of equally murderous machines at home.

Then "war in the air," of which we have read for so many years, will be seen in reality.

The daring man who attacks a city will rush at his highest speed, dipping and rising, employing all the arts of the bird pursued or attacking.

He will drop his bombshells if he can. And the flying machines of the city attacked will drop HIM if they can.

Very likely before this brutal and unnecessary war shall end, one of the regular sights of great cities will be the attacking flying machine, attacked in its turn by defending airmen, with machine guns cracking high in the air, and occasionally bombs dropping.

Naturally, the Germans will not long have a monopoly of these excursions through the air. Soon probably the large German cities will have return visits. The experiences of Antwerp and Paris will probably have prepared them.

Several years ago this newspaper pointed out that the defences of the United States should contain among other things a very large flock of flying machines. These would be used for practice and useful purposes in peace. They would be ready in case of attack at sea to fly out, meet the incoming fleet and keep the enemy busy with a rain of dynamite from the sky.

It is to be taken for granted that the officials of our army and navy are closely watching the details of European battle—especially the actual use of the flying machine, and making preparations for the full use of those machines should we have war here.

Extremely inexpensive would be the harassing fleet of the air. Machines could be built very cheaply, stored in quantities. They would cost nothing for upkeep when not used, except the oiling and supervising of the engines.

In time of war, men capable and daring would be found in plenty to use these machines and meet an attacking fleet in the air, co-operating with our ships on the water, our submarines, our mines, and the guns of our land forts.

The right kind of an air fleet on the Pacific and the Atlantic, the right kind of a fighting fleet using the Panama Canal to shorten distance, the right kind of guns AND THE GREAT COMMERCIAL NAVY OWNED BY THE NATION WILL BEFORE MANY YEARS MAKE THIS NATION AS SAFE FROM ATTACK AS IS THE VERY CENTRE OF THE EARTH.

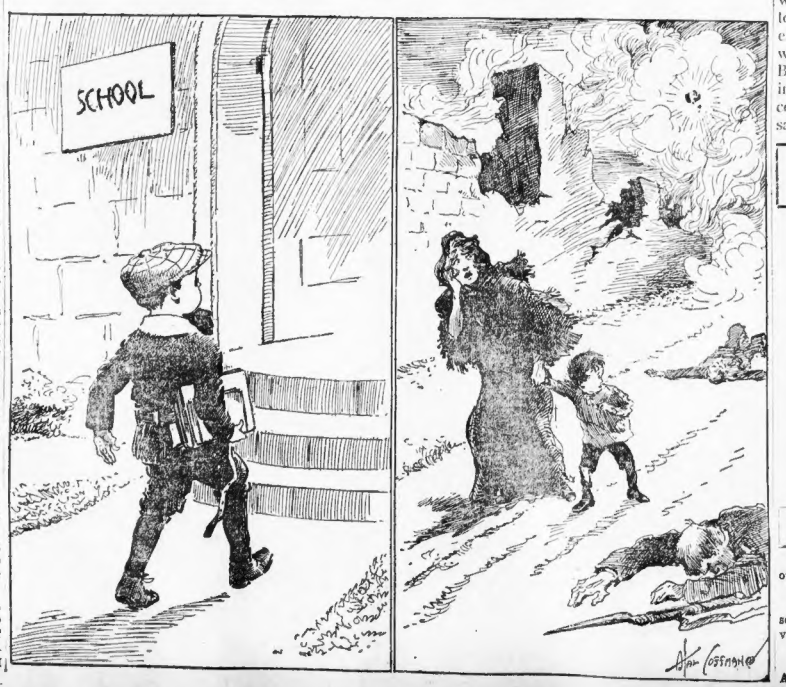
Here---and---There



Life Is What We Make It

If We Look Upon the Bright Side of Things We Will Surely Lead a Happy Existence.

By ELLA WHEELER WILCOX

Copyright, 1914, by the Star Company

TWO women, strangers to each other, came to a country resort and rented adjoining cottages. Both were new cottages. Both were new comers, unacquainted with the residents.

Their houses were of similar style and furnishings, both rented of the same agent and both with equal opportunities for enjoyment, so far as external conditions are concerned. But this is what happened before the season had half expired:

One house became the centre of life, wholesome pleasure and pleasant entertainment. Passers-by found it a magnet and loved to pause at the door or to sit for a moment on the veranda, chatting with the agreeable hostess. Children, women and men were alike enthusiastic in their appreciation of this new comer, whose smile made sunlight on the darkest day and whose voice had ever a ring of hope and a note of praise and a chord of pleasure and never a dissonance.

She Emanated Sunshine

This woman was gifted with the rare quality of appreciation of everything good in nature or human nature. She strongly accented whatever to her in the world seemed admirable and she passed lightly over whatever was disappointing or disagreeable.

She remembered every pleasant thing she heard about anyone and she quickly forgot whatever was unpleasant. She refused to discuss or be dominated by weeks of wet weather, and in consequence she emanated sunshine and turned the pessimistic caller into an optimist. Every door was open to her, and her companionship was equally sought by old and young.

Meantime what was happening next door? This woman began by criticism of the weather, fault finding with the house in which she dwelt, sarcasm concerning her neighbors. She disapproved of everything and of everybody. She declared the whole town out of drawing with what her mental conception pictured it should be. She objected to the habits, the dress, the customs and the occupations of everybody in the place.

Then, because as a very natural consequence, she was left quite alone, she declared it to be the most unsociable and discourteous town on the map of the universe. No one was ever seen on her verandas, and one felt the vibrations of gloom and discord, even in passing the door.

Never was there a greater illustration or a more direct proof of the power of the mind to create its own environment than in this true incident herein related.

Other Full of Sarcasm

One woman leaves the town full of praise for its scenery, its people and its social life; the other leaves with suppressed curses and open sarcasm.

One carries with her the love, admiration and appreciation of a large circle of friends; the other will either be ignored and forgotten, or remembered only for her disagreeable qualities. Each has received exactly what she sent out from her mind and that is what all of us do.

Life is precisely what we make it. That which we give, we receive. Not always in the detail but in the aggregate. Here and there, some old karmic law may cause us to be at times unfairly treated by those whom we have treated fairly; to be cheated by those to whom we have given honest dealing, or to be neglected by those to whom we have been devoted.

But if our hearts are full of good will, generous judgment, appreciation and love; if we see and remember the good and pass briefly over the evil in life and in people we are sure to be rewarded a hundred fold in the large experiences which life offers us.

Life What We Make It

You can never tell what your thoughts will do,
In bringing you hate or love;
For thoughts are things, and their airy wings
Are swifter than carrier dove.
They follow the law of the universe—
Each thing must create its kind,
And they speed o'er the track to bring you back
Whatever went out from your mind.

DO YOU KNOW THAT—

Boston is the third most important port in the world? That in foreign and coastwise shipping Boston is ranked only by New York and London? In foreign commerce Boston ranks as the sixth port in the world. The number of vessels of all kinds entering Boston harbor increased from 11,616 in 1911 to 12,147 in 1913. The number of steamship lines, foreign and coastwise, at this port grew from 36 to 44 during the same period.

AID

By WILLIAM F. KIRK.

WHEN I was dreaming in a glade
Beside a winding stream
There came a fairy unafraid
And woke me from my dream—
Her eyes were big and undismayed,
Her wings were all a-gleam.

"Come tell me of another world
Where I have never been,"
I asked the sprite. Her sweet lips curled:
"And know you not your queen?
And know you not that all I know
Are things that you have seen?"

"But I have been in winding ways
And drunk of sin's black tide,
And fought and cursed—aye, with the worst!"
The little sprite replied:
"And knew you not through the years of blot
That I was by your side?"

New Way of Waging Sea Wars

A new problem is rising that is giving naval men the world over deep concern.

All that is in naval material may be already obsolete.

The present European conflict may send all battleships to the scrap heap and leave only monster sharks of steel and man-made vultures of the air to fight for the ocean's mastery.

Why?
